2 PLAINTIFF'S SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO 3 COMPEL PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

4 This Supplemental Memorandum is submitted pursuant to the Court's 5 ordered dated January 11, 2016.

6 Plaintiff alleges that Kohl's violates California law by using false and 7 misleading price comparisons for its private and exclusive branded products. The 8 case is pleaded as a class action on behalf of California consumers who purchased 9 private or exclusive branded products from Kohl's at a stated discount of 30% or 10 more. For all intents and purposes, this case is materially indistinguishable from 11 another false price-comparison case that was recently certified in this district. See 12 Spann v. JCPenney Corp., 307 F.R.D. 508 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (certifying class based 13 on the same claims). See also, Spann v. JCPenney Corp., No. SA CV 12-0215
14 FMO(RNBx), 2015 WL 1526559 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 23, 2015) (denying defendant's 15 motion for summary judgment and holding, based on evidence submitted, that 16 Plaintiff may pursue a variety of different measures of restitution and/or damages
17 at trial). Notably, two of Plaintiff's counsel herein are also class counsel in Spann, 18 and they seek in this case to obtain the same types of evidence used to certify a 19 class and defeat summary judgment in Spann.

20 By order of the Court, Plaintiff must file her motion for class certification
21 by February 2, 2016. Dkt. No. 29. To complicate matters, counsel for Kohl's
22 notified Plaintiff's counsel on January 14, 2016 that Kohl's intends to promptly 23 file a motion for summary judgment on either January 22, or January 25, 2016.
24 See Ex. 1 (Email correspondence between counsel). Therein, Kohl's intends to 25 argue, in part, that Plaintiff has no evidence to show her entitlement to restitution.
26 Id. Plaintiff's counsel responded that such a motion would be premature, in part,
27 because Kohl's has not yet produced all the sales data and other documentation 28 that would be used to oppose this argument, and because Plaintiff's expert will

1 need time to process and analyze the data once it is produced. Id. Plaintiff's
2 counsel also noted that the timing of Defendant's summary judgment motion 3 would force Plaintiff's counsel to oppose this potentially dispositive motion by 4 February 1, 2016, which is just one day before their motion for class certification
5 is due. Plaintiff's counsel submits that this schedule is unreasonable given that: 1) 6 counsel are traveling to Milwaukee, Wisconsin this week for the depositions of 7 three Kohl's employees; 2) Kohl's still has not produced the majority of 8 documents that it promised to produce; 3) the parties have a discovery dispute that 9 will not be heard until January 26, 2016; 4) once Kohl's completes its document 10 production, Plaintiff's counsel and her expert(s) will need time to analyze the 11 document production (including the sales data), and it will take additional time and 12 effort to prepare both a motion for class certification and opposition to summary 13 judgment. Id. Accordingly, Plaintiff's counsel requested that the parties enter into 14 a reasonable briefing schedule on the summary judgment motion that takes all 15 these facts into consideration. Id. To date, counsel for Kohl's has refused. Id.

16 It is against this backdrop that Plaintiff seeks a prompt production of 17 documents from Kohl's. On December 28, 2015, Plaintiff proposed, at least 18 temporarily, to drastically reduce the scope of her document request in order to 19 significantly reduce the time and effort for Kohl's to comply. See Stiefel Decl., 20 [Dkt. No. 36] at 11, ¶11. Specifically, Plaintiff proposed that Kohl's temporarily 21 limit its production for each document request category to those documents that 22 relate to private or exclusive branded products purchased by Plaintiff at a discount 23 of 30% or more (the "Chowning proposal"). Kohl's responded that it could not,
24 without undue burden, identify which of Plaintiff's purchases involve products
25 within the class definition (See Exhibit 2 (Dkt. No. 36-9)), so Plaintiff clarified 26 that she would limit her requests (temporarily) to just the two items identified in 27 her original complaint, plus two more qualifying items that she had identified from 28

1 receipts that she had previously produced to Kohl's.<sup>1</sup> The parties have gone back 2 and forth on this proposal, and other offers to compromise, but it was not until 3 January 14 and 15, 2016 that Kohl's provided its final response to Plaintiff's
4 proposals as reflected in the parties' Joint Stipulation filed on January 15, 2016.
5 See Dkt. No. 42.

6 At this point, the current discovery dispute has effectively been reduced to 7 two issues. First, Kohl's has committed to produce most of the documents that 8 Plaintiff has requested via the meet and confer process, but its "rolling" production 9 continues to be slow and defective. To be sure, Kohl's has produced some 10 documents, but approximately half of the production to date consists of copies of 11 print advertisements (RFP No. 3)<sup>2</sup>; and it is difficult to determine what other 12 categories have been produced. Based on a preliminary examination, it appears 13 that Kohl's has not yet produced any documents related to some categories of 14 documents, including but not limited to, in-store advertising (RFP No. 5), rotation
15 plans (RFP No. 13), projection analyses (Request No. 17), bestseller sheets (RFP
16 No. 19), enterprise planning documents (RFP No. 21), and pricing forms (or PLU
17 sheets) (Request Nos. 25 and 29). Kohl's counsel has stated that Kohl's produced 18 documents relating to establishing plans (RFP No. 15) and LP Query data (RFP 19 No. 27), but it appears such production is incomplete. . See Exhibit 3. Kohl's has 20 only completed a partial production of almost every other document category, such 21 as documents showing the advertised regular or original prices for two (rather than 22 four) items purchased by Plaintiff (RFP No. 8); purchase orders for two (rather 23 than four) items purchased by Plaintiff (RFP No. 12); audit documents for one or 24 possibly two (rather than four) items (RFP No. 23); and finally, comprehensive

26 <sup>1</sup> These two additional purchases are now referenced in Plaintiff's First Amended Complaint filed today. Dkt. No. 44 at ¶¶ 32-33.

27 <sup>2</sup> Kohl's produced more documents at 9:00 pm on January 19, 2016 while counsel are in Milwaukee, Wisconsin preparing to take three (3) depositions, and 28 we have not yet had time to analysis and evaluate the documents produced.
Kohl's made an additional production at 1:18 p.m. on January 20, 2016, the date this supplemental brief will be filed.

1 sales data for two (rather than four) products purchased by Plaintiff (RFP No. 31).<sup>3</sup>

2 In addition to being an incomplete production, many of the documents
3 produced are not decipherable (complicated by the fact that Kohl's has not 4 identified the Request to which each document is responsive). At a deposition on 5 January 20, 2016 (the date of filing this brief), Kohl's head of the pricing
6 compliance office that performs price audits was not able to explain many audit-7 related documents and/or state how they relate to Plaintiff's purchases. Moreover, 8 Kohl's has produced documents that appear to show sales transaction data for the 9 same product but each spreadsheet contains different transaction data for the same 10 dates. See Exhibit 4. For example, Bates Stamped documents 496 and 517 appear 11 to show sales transaction data for the J-Lo Dress with Style No. JL614411, but 12 each spreadsheet contains different transaction data for the same dates.
13 Furthermore, some of the documents that Kohl's has produced in "Tiff" format are 14 not completely legible; and some of the data, such as the sales transaction data for 15 one item, appear to be either incomplete and/or comingled with unresponsive data.
16 In sum, Kohl's suggest that it has produced a lot of documents, but the production 17 is far from complete at this juncture and the outstanding information sought by 18 Plaintiff extends far past the single item Kohl's references in its supplemental 19 brief.

20 The second remaining dispute concerns Request No. 2, in which Plaintiff
21 requests all research, studies, analysis, reports or surveys concerning retail prices, 22 discounts, sale prices or price comparison advertising in Kohl's possession. This 23 request is highly relevant to some of the central issues in this case, including 24 whether Kohl's "Regular" prices and price comparison advertising are material 25 and/or "likely to deceive" a reasonable consumer. Spann, 307 F.R.D. at 521 (citing 26 cases). See also id. at 518 (listing common questions as "whether defendant's 27

28 <sup>3</sup> Again, even the documents produced appear to be incomplete or missing relevant data concerning the products to which they relate.

1 advertisements were likely to deceive a reasonable consumer; [and] whether 2 defendant's statements regarding its pricing were material to plaintiff's purchasing
3 decisions. . ."). To date, Kohl's has only agreed to produce (and has produced)
4 focus group research pertaining to California consumers. However, it refuses to 5 produce other responsive documents based on its argument that such evidence is 6 not limited to California consumers. Meanwhile, Plaintiff believes, and Kohl's 7 does not dispute that it is unilaterally withholding many more responsive 8 documents, including but not limited to customer surveys that directly deal with 9 the material issues in this case. Kohl's has not cited, and Plaintiff is unaware of 10 any authority suggesting that the "reasonable consumer" standard is limited to 11 consumers in one particular state (i.e., California), and given the broad definition 12 of "relevance" under the Federal Rules, Plaintiff believes that Kohl's should be 13 ordered to produce all responsive documents in its possession, custody or control.
